

EARLY AMERICAN LITERATURE

Early American Literature, founded in 1966, is the journal of the Division on Early American Literature to 1800 of the Modern Language Association. It is the only journal that focuses on scholarship and criticism of American literature through the early national period. Each issue typically includes four or five articles, the same number of book reviews, and a review essay. Occasionally editions of previously unpublished works appear.

Published three times a year, Spring, Fall, and Winter.
