

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA
Philosophy of Science
Professor

The Department of Philosophy (<http://www.cas.sc.edu/phil/>) at the University of South Carolina invites applications for a tenured full Professor position in philosophy of science. Candidates will be expected to have credentials suitable for being appointed as Professor with a proven record of top-quality, internationally recognized, research, a commitment to excellent teaching, and the ability to make immediate contributions to strengthening our graduate program. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to play a key role in the University's Center for Humanistic Study of Science and its Consortium for Science, Technology, Environment, and Medicine in Society.

Applicants should send a complete dossier, including a current CV, contact information for at least three people familiar with the candidates work and willing to provide a letter of reference, a substantial sample of written work, a statement of teaching and research interests, and evidence of teaching strength.

Applications or letters of inquiry should be addressed to:

Michael Dickson, Chair, Hiring Committee
Department of Philosophy
Byrnes Building, 4th Floor
University of South Carolina
Columbia, SC, 29208

For full consideration, all application materials must be received no later than October 1, 2011.

The University of South Carolina has been designated as one of only 73 public and 35 private academic institutions with "very high research activity" by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. The Carnegie Foundation also lists USC as having strong community engagement. The University has over 28,000 students on the main campus (and over 43,000 students system-wide), 350 degree programs, and a nationally-ranked library system. Columbia, the capital of South Carolina, has a population of over 650,000 in the greater metropolitan area.

The University of South Carolina is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply. The University of South Carolina does not discriminate in educational or employment opportunities or decision for qualified persons on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation or veteran status.